College Seal's 50th Anniversary

50 years ago the design of the Saint Joseph's College coat of arms was approved by the faculty, and it appeared in print for the first time on the cover of the October 1936 issue of the Saint Joseph's Collegian.

The coat of arms was rendered by Father Charles Davitt, C.P.P.S. and the art work drawn by seminarian Clarence Schuerman in 1934.

The coat of arms or College seal identifies the College and its date of incorporation on the outer circular band. The next band states in Latin the College motto: "Religion, Morality, Knowledge."

The triangular figure within the crest is the SJC coat of arms. When rendered in color, its outer border is silver and on it are eight drops of blood; the shield is blue and the carpenter's square and three lilies are silver.

The drops of blood represent the guardianship of the Society of the Precious Blood over the College.

The shield contains a carpenter's square and three lilies. The carpenter's square reminds us that Saint Joseph, the patron of the College, was a craftsman. The lilies symbolize purity.

Parents Association Blasts Off In 1986

Parent volunteers have taken a leading role at Saint Joseph's in the past few months.

Under the leadership of Bob and Lou Szucs, parent volunteers have come together to help greet freshman parents and their new Pumas at the beginning of the school year, as well as help with planning and implementing an innovative Parents Weekend program.

Parents Weekend '86 featured talks by faculty, including a discussion of the Core curriculum by history professor Bill White and a presentation entitled "Dealing with Your Adult Child" by psychology professor Jim Kenny. The dinner for parents and their sons and daughters was brought back this year, providing an event and a place for parents to gather under one roof and socialize.

Future plans include formal organization of the Parents Association and involvement in College advancement activities such as student recruitment, career assistance, and fundraising. A possible parents event in the spring is also being researched.

The entire College community looks forward to more great things coming from this group, and we look for more parents to get involved in the Parents Association.

Alumni Career Day Held

Students got a chance to hear what it was like to make the transition from college to career straight from the mouths of Saint Joe alumni, as several came back to campus on Alumni Career Day (Oct. 22) to talk to students one-on-one.

Participants were: Steve Kizanic '69 of Thomas Dodge (Orland Park, Ill.), Tim Kuhar '77 of Pilgrim Farms (Plymouth, Ind.), Gene Larken '73 of the CPA firm Bansley & Kiener (Chicago), Dick Hoying

'74 of Eli Lilly & Co. (Indianapolis), and Bob Straz '73 of Orland Park Plaza Bank (Orland Park, Ill.).

Thanks again to the alumni who helped out our future alumni!

Presidents' Corner

It is always a pleasure to address our alumni and friends, but especially during the holiday season.

Giving characterizes this joyous time and adds meaning to the often frantic nature of these few weeks before Christmas. I hope the flurry of activity doesn't keep us from the vision of what Christmas is all about. And I pray that, whether in our shopping, cooking, or traveling, the gift to us of God's only Son stands forth and endows our actions with the spirit of selfless love, making them all worthwhile.

So many good things have happened to Saint Joseph's because of the spirit of giving that fills this College family throughout the year. The new Hanson Recreational Center is open to our students, new dorm windows keep them warm, and five new trustees have joined us to help expand and enhance the school's educational mission.

I thank all those who have helped us through their prayers, and personal and financial sacrifices. God bless you, and have a Merry Christmas and a joyous New Year. You are in our prayers always.

Charles Banet, C.P.P.S.
President
Saint Joseph's College

I encourage all alumni to participate in these activities, which benefit alumni as well as the College. The Alumni Association continually endeavors to ascertain how it can be of service to the entire College community. The alumni survey which was mailed out earlier this year will be used in the coming months to help us discern the path we should take in serving one another and our alma mater.

In this giving season, the Alumni Association gives of itself in serving the needs of alumni and the College. We ask you to join us and wish you a happy Christmas season.

Drexel Hall got some attention this summer as the Kankakee Valley Job Training Program worked to clear away debris and secure the state landmark and former dormitory.

Formerly the old Indian School, the property was besieged by Job Training program employees at the start of the summer.

Fred Plant, assistant vice president for facilities and planning, said the approximately half dozen workers were commissioned by the College to secure the old building against further natural damage and vandalism, clean debris from inside the structure, and clear the approximately four acres of woods adjacent to the building property.

Job supervisor Terry Curin said Aug. 4 was the last day of work on the project after eight weeks of eight-hour days sawing, pulling, digging, and sweeping.

"The first thing we saw when we started on the job was a piece of cement," said Curin. "We started clearing away brush and it turned out to be a sidewalk."

Besides the sidewalk, the group of workers uncovered old deer blinds, cinder-covered pathways, and old artifacts such as Zippo lighters and beer cans.

Old trees were cleared away, except for those that housed families of squirrels and bee hives, Curin said.

Stakes were also set out to mark holes occupied by numerous groundhogs in the area so as not to disturb them, he said.

Hoping someday that it will become a hospitality hotel for the College or a country inn, Curin has high hopes for the building and grounds that he and his workers have reclaimed from the overgrowth.

1986-87 School Year Begins

Saint Joseph's began its 1986-87 academic year with 850 students enrolled for the fall semester, 502 men (59%) and 348 women (41%).

The outset of the year also featured the addition of an honors program and joint nursing arrangement to its nationally recognized curriculum, as well as the completion of a series of summer improvements to the physical plant. And several faculty members returned to campus with new knowledge of our neighbors to the south, after having participated this summer in a workshop on Latin America.

Honors Core Program

Thirty-five freshmen and sophomores began participation in the honors program with the first day of classes; the program is incorporated into the Core curriculum of general education.

Dr. William White, associate professor of history and chairman of the Honors Committee, says, "the students and faculty at a small college like Saint Joseph's deserve an honors program, because it is an exciting challenge for both groups to reach for the very best that is in them."

He explains that the honors program is designed to complement SJC's liberal arts philosophy and to stimulate the critical analysis of select topics from a variety of perspectives.

Dr. White says participants will derive varied benefits, including the fact that they are entering a healthy, friendly atmosphere of academic competition that should spur each student toward greater achievements. Honors students also will have their participation noted on their transcripts and they will receive certificates of participation.

"I would expect that students who graduate with four years of honors participation will be more articulate and better able to present themselves to the professional world," states Dr. White. "This is obviously a unique opportunity for eligible students to enhance their educational experience here."

Nursing Program

The SJC-St. Elizabeth

cooperative program is intended for registered nurses with their current Indiana license who wish to complete work on their bachelor of science in nursing degree. This program began with the current fall semester, while a B.S. in nursing program for beginning nursing students will be initiated in the fall of 1987.

Courses will be scheduled in morning, afternoon, and evening periods to accommodate both full-time and part-time students, especially registered nurses already working in the field.

Students have five years to complete the degree, and three semesters will be operated each calendar year, starting in late August, early January, and early May. Up to 18 credits can be earned on a part-time basis in one calendar year and the entire program can be completed in 32 months.

Dr. John Nichols

Dr. John Nichols, academic vice president, says a survey of registered nurses in northwestern Indiana conducted by St. Elizabeth last year showed "there are a lot of people in this area who have completed the RN program and are looking for a way to complete the degree. This cooperative program offers a practical way to do it."

Campus Improvements

Summers are never dull on the campus, where physical plant additions, repairs, and improvements intensify with the departure of students at the end of the winter semester and continue through much of the warm weather before the fall semester begins.

Construction of the school's new recreation center was the most visible campus project this summer. The building, located immediately west of the Alumni Fieldhouse, was built with flexibility, durability, and energy-efficiency in mind.

A series of dormitory improvements include new roofs, lights, and windows. Noll and Bennett Halls received new roofs in the early spring, as did the tower portion of Halleck Center.

Fluorescent lights replace incandescent lights in five dormitories, providing more light and a better quality of light at less expense. The same five dormitories — Aquinas, Bennett, Merlini, Noll, and Seifert Halls — also have received new maintenance-free thermopane windows that will reduce heat loss.

Fire escapes have been installed at the end of the first and second-floor corridors in Merlini Hall, a new section of water main has been installed at Justin Hall, and centrally monitored smoke detectors have been installed in Aquinas, Bennett, Merlini, Noll, and Seifert Halls.

New washers and dryers have been installed in the campus laundromat, a 12,000-volt electric system has been expanded to 10 campus buildings, and new insulation has been applied to pipes in the boiler room in order to gain significant energy savings. In a very visible project, floodlights were installed to illuminate the facade of the College Chapel.

Latin America Workshop

Twelve Saint Joseph's faculty completed a four-week Latin America workshop on the campus this past May and June as the College prepares for the start of its Latin American studies program in January 1988.

"This workshop was a most beneficial experience for our faculty and a necessary beginning for our study of this area," reports Dr. Phil Posey, chairman of Saint Joseph's history-political science department and project director for the new studies program.

"Participating faculty gained a considerable level of understanding of the political, economic, social, and intellectual realities of Mexico and Central America, and this foundation should make us better able to develop further expertise so that we can do the best job possible in imparting this understanding to our students," he adds.

Homecoming '86 Packs 'em In!

For weeks prior to Homecoming '86, the rain poured constantly, and people in Collegeville were beginning to wonder if God had forgotten his promise about never repeating the forty-days-and-forty-nights Deluge. Some may have half-wondered if the new Rec Center was actually an updated ark.

Homecoming Day arrived on Oct. 4, and the rain desisted long enough for the outdoor activities — the parade (with Trustee Phil Wilhelm '63 as Grand Marshal), the Beer & Brat Tent, the Happy Hour — to take place in relative dryness.

It was even dry enough for raffle winners Bob Johnson '61 (watch) and Steve Padgett (liquor basket) to claim their prizes.

It was another story altogether for the Homecoming game itself.

Saint Joseph's football field had not fared well under the relentless rains; some parts were six inches under water. The game had to be moved. But to where?

Purdue University refused to let the Pumas use an artificial-turf practice field for the game.

Head football coach Bill Reagan then remembered Brookside Park, the former area high school field which hadn't seen action since 1972. It wasn't pretty, but it wasn't a swimming hole, either.

Everyone helped get the field in shape. Sand was used to fill in the holes; portable bleachers were driven in; they rolled the field, put a fence around it, and lined it. They even put ribbons on the rusty goal posts for greater visibility.

This herculean effort later earned Saint Joseph's a write-up in Sports Illustrated and national publicity, but Homecoming Day saw the Pumas lose to Butler 32-22.

Wide receiver Dennis O'Hara of Indianapolis received the Rudy Volz Memorial Trophy for the Homecoming game's most valuable player. The award was presented by Rudy Volz, Jr., son of the late Saint Joe alumni director and the trophy's namesake, in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of his death.

Dave Cook '61 delivered his class' 25-year reunion gift to Father Banet: insurance policies and other deferred gifts totalling nearly $300,000!

And Rich Hanson '63 received the Alumni Service Award from Alumni Association president Ray Merritt '77, in recognition for his outstanding service to the College as trustee, advisor, and benefactor.

Rensselaer Program An Intense, Friendly Experience

Saint Joseph's is the annual summer home of the Rensselaer Program of Church Music and Liturgy, a unique school consisting of expert faculty and motivated students that has achieved worldwide prominence as a training ground for church liturgists and musicians.

"It's a real pleasure to teach in this sort of environment," says faculty member Steven Edwards, who teaches voice, various conducting courses, and is the conductor of the summer chorus. "We have students with a broad range of experiences and ages who are motivated and successful, who already often have an academic degree if not an advanced degree, who are returning to a study of church music as either their first love or a new love."

In contrast to the traditional undergraduate environment where the teacher may be the sole experienced authority, Edwards often finds himself sharing with students similar professional experiences and offering ideas that will help his students experiment, practice, and grow.

"Many of our students are already professional church musicians or liturgists whose experience has shown them their strengths and deficiencies. They come here with a desire to strengthen their deficiencies and become that much better at their jobs," Edwards adds.

Sister Joselyn Brenner, O.S.F., who teaches two music theory courses and two sight singing courses, notes that the typical undergraduate student is often investigating career options, while the Rensselaer Program's students are usually committed church musicians and liturgists.

"Many of our students also teach in elementary schools, help with the music programs in their local schools as well as in their parishes, and they come here with high degrees of skill in music and are seeking to improve their liturgical expertise, or they are highly skilled liturgists seeking to strengthen their musical talents," she explains. "To meet the needs of these people, our Rensselaer Program has expanded from an institute of liturgical music into a complete program of church music and liturgy."

Church Music & Liturgy Program Adds Faculty, Enrollment

When the 27th annual summer session of the Rensselaer Program of Church Music and Liturgy began June 24, there were three new faculty members and a significant increase in enrollment.

Joining the teaching staff were Dr. Renee Rust, O.S.B., doctoral candidate John Brooks-Leonard, and Sister Paula Napoli, S.S.J., a 1985 graduate of the Rensselaer Program. Sister Napoli, a St. Joseph sister from Baltimore, returned to serve as an assistant to program director Father Lawrence Heiman and to teach a course in Liturgy Planning and Coordination of Liturgies.

Dr. Rust, a Benedictine nun who holds a doctor's degree in ministry, is director of the College Press Educational Center in Dayton, Ohio. She has written several books, monographs, and articles. Her expertise in teaching extends to all levels from elementary through university and seminary. At Saint Joseph's, she taught a graduate course in the Eucharist and Christian Tradition and another in Symbol, Ritual, and Celebration.

Brooks-Leonard is a candidate for the doctor of philosophy degree in liturgical studies at the University of Notre Dame, where he also serves as graduate assistant and seminar director. He has publications in both music and liturgy, and in the Rensselaer Program he taught two graduate courses, one on the Liturgical Year and the other on the Rite of Christian Initiation.

Joining Father Heiman from the SJC faculty were Dr. John B. and Anne-Marie Egan, and Father Ralph Verdi. Father Verdi returned from doctoral studies at the Catholic University of America.

The Rensselaer Program of Church Music and Liturgy offers more than 30 courses in both graduate and undergraduate music and liturgy. Students pursuing organized sequences may specialize in any of the following areas: organ, piano, guitar, voice, composition, conducting, or music education. Those enrolling as "special students" may choose any course for which they have the prerequisites.

Sister Joselyn stresses that today's proficient church musician needs to be skilled in both music and liturgy.

The Rensselaer Program is characterized by an intense but relaxed atmosphere where a student's growth occurs both inside and outside the classroom. Faculty and students get to know each other well, and faculty often gather information from students which they add to their classroom repertoire.

"I really enjoy seeing the variety of musical styles and applications our students bring us from around the United States," says Edwards. "Our students offer new and different perspectives on music and liturgy by virtue of their own background experiences. Both our faculty and our students do a lot of learning in this program."

Church musicians and liturgists are often "islands unto themselves" in their respective parishes and schools, but in the Rensselaer Program they are surrounded by others who share similar experiences, problems, and solutions.

"One of the keys to success in our program is that we cheer each other on, we push each other to do better and to excel, and we constantly put expectations on each other," Sister Joselyn comments. "In this atmosphere, students also come to expect more of themselves."

A ready reflection of these high expectations is demonstrated in each summer's series of high-quality recitals, performed by guests, faculty, and Rensselaer Program students.

Most classes in the Rensselaer Program are divided into small groups, but Edwards says, "the chorus is the one enrichment session where we are all together for a shared learning and social experience. If you're looking for a ready demonstration of what we call 'the Rensselaer spirit,' you'll find it here."

Sister Joselyn adds, "we go from the known to the unknown in the program, working toward the goal of making Christian communities closer through the liturgy with the realization that each member is a person loved absolutely and unchangeably by God. It is a wonderful thing to see the sound and the spirit of the liturgy bring a congregation more closely together in the worship of God."

All Rensselaer Program courses are taught with the idea of integrating music and liturgy, thus better enabling the students to return to their home communities and coordinate the efforts and talents of those serving in the music and liturgy programs of their churches.

The learning and sharing of the Rensselaer Program doesn't stop with the conclusion of classes early each August, either.

"Our students and faculty keep in touch throughout the year," reports Edwards. "When a student calls me during the year to talk about some problem or project, it's always a pleasure to discuss ideas and find out how that student is getting along."

Sister Joselyn Brenner

Music & Liturgy Assume Greater Professionalism

Not so long ago, church liturgists were more often than not volunteers who enjoyed music as a hobby and expanded their enjoyment by applying their skills to the musical and liturgical needs of their parishes.

That picture has changed markedly, as a majority of today's church liturgists are highly skilled professionals who coordinate the efforts of other volunteers in an age that has witnessed enormous developments in church music and liturgy.

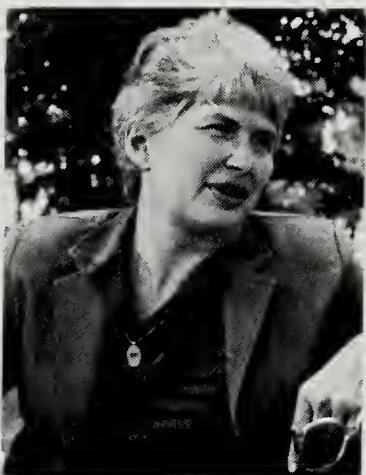

"This growing professionalism in church music and liturgy might be viewed as an outgrowth of the Second Vatican Council and its concern for ministry through music and liturgy," explains Steven Edwards, a faculty member of the Rensselaer Program of Church Music and Liturgy at Saint Joseph's who is now director of the chorus and an instructor of music at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa.

"There is a growing number of ministries in the Church, such as greeter, reader, acolyte, youth minister, and liturgy director, and these varied responsibilities, often assumed by the parish priest prior to the mid-1960s, are now being divided among other parish members," he adds.

Sister Joselyn Brenner, O.S.F., another Rensselaer Program faculty member, who is director of liturgy at St. Stanislaus and St. Wenceslaus parishes in Omaha, Neb., says "this program directly reflects that growing professionalism. We have expanded our bachelor's, master's, and associate degree program now to include a certificate program in church music and a diploma in pastoral liturgy."

In order to meet the growing, changing needs of today's liturgists, she says, "our Rensselaer Program has expanded its emphasis in music from organ, voice, composition, and conducting to now include piano and guitar."

Edwards adds that, "the doors of church music have been opened to a full range of popular and orchestral instruments, and we are now exploring a broad area of music — including sound systems — in service to the Church."

Anne-Marie Egan
Rensselaer Program Faculty

Dr. John Egan
Rensselaer Program Faculty

Growing professionalism is evident, not only among liturgical leaders, but among parish volunteers who themselves increasingly have solid music backgrounds and can participate with greater intelligence and understanding in the liturgy itself.

Edwards points to the participation of children in the liturgy as a significant development. "The roles of musicians and readers are not limited to adults only, so that younger parish members grow up accustomed to being an integral part of their respective church communities," he explains. "Ideas of the ministry have changed and increased the functions of lay people of all ages in the celebration of the Mass."

This growing professionalism among church liturgists and musicians has been accompanied by two critical developments that signal a bright future for these professionals: rising salaries and an increased demand for their services.

"In the last 10 years, it has become possible for someone to choose church music as a viable career, complete with job benefits and a retirement program," reports Sister Joselyn. "A lay person can make anywhere from $12,000 to $30,000 per year; this work is no longer just a hobby, but the type of career on which you can support a family."

In addition, the demand for professional church musicians and liturgists is running ahead of the supply as increasing numbers of parishes create and fund these jobs at all levels. Large and small churches, and those in both urban and rural areas, are thus demonstrating an awareness of the importance of good musicianship in the liturgy.

"The demand for volunteers to assist in the liturgy also exceeds the supply," says Edwards, "and that's why our Rensselaer Program is so important. Our program is the only one of its kind that seeks to meet all the needs of this growing world of church music and liturgy, and we have expanded our offerings to keep pace with the demands of both music and liturgy."

He says the Rensselaer Program also offers the advantage of being a summer program, so that its participants can come to Saint Joseph's to polish their skills in June and July, then return to their respective parishes as teachers and liturgists before a new school year begins.

Steven Edwards directs the Rensselaer Program Chorus.

Professor Robinson Attends NEH Seminar

Dr. Patricia Robinson, associate professor of sociology and chairman of that department, participated this summer in a National Endowment for the Humanities summer seminar at Boston University.

The seminar, "The Early Christian World in Sociological Perspective," was hosted by Howard C. Kee of the Graduate Division of Religious Studies at Boston University.

"The 1970s and 1980s have seen a surge of interest in social approaches to knowledge, in fields ranging from the history of medicine through philosophy, psychology, and anthropology to historical and religious studies," Kee explains. "Over the past 10 years a growing number of scholars have developed ways to exploit the insights and methods deriving from the social sciences for the study of ancient cultures in general and of the origins of Christianity in particular."

Accordingly, Kee says he developed this seminar to:

1. explore major studies in sociological methods,
2. analyze ancient sources in light of these approaches, and
3. from these perspectives, ask fresh questions about the dynamics of early Christianity.

The seminar showed how the early Christians were not only influenced by their contemporary culture but were also transforming it as they developed their own models of Christian social identity.

"When you examine sociological studies with the specific factor of social transformation in view, you can see more clearly how social dynamics were at work in shaping the Christians' understandings of themselves as God's people and of their values and destiny," Kee says.

The seminar featured the participation of Peter Berger and Jacob Neusner, whose work respectively on sociology of knowledge and the development of the structures of post-Biblical Judaism is internationally acclaimed.

Dr. Robinson says, "this seminar afforded me a valuable opportunity to enrich my knowledge and understanding of the early Christian world and it should be very useful to me in teaching both sociology and Core."

She adds that "eleven other educators were awarded this grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and they represented colleges from all regions of the U.S. as well as a variety of disciplines — sociology, theology, and classical studies, for example. Individuals from both private and public institutions participated."

Professors Visit Latin America, Prepare Curriculum Addition

Large mountains and a rugged terrain make transportation in Costa Rica difficult at best, and efforts to improve the country's economy must always struggle against this element of geography, says Dr. Bill White SJC associate professor of history who visited Costa Rica for two weeks this summer.

Dr. White was joined on his study trip by SJC faculty members Dr. Pat Posey and Father Tim McFadden under auspices of a $7,600 grant from the Council for the Advancement of Private Higher Education. He spent time in the preparation of a Latin American studies program that will be introduced to the school's curriculum in January 1988.

Geography forms the biggest difference between the U.S. and Costa Rica." Dr. White begins "From the air it looks like a stone's throw from the central valley and its bordering mountains to the ocean on each side, but the mountains and rugged roads make transportation slow and difficult. It's incredible that the people here are as economically active as they are despite this geographic drawback."

He says he was constantly impressed with the ability of the Costa Rican people to make a living despite the geography and relatively poor soil, and he is now more aware of how blessed the U.S. is with its modernized transportation system.

"Costa Rica is very different from other Central American countries in that it has a negligible Indian population, its government continues a long-standing democracy, and it has the highest per-capita income in Central America," he adds. "In addition, I saw remarkable similarities between the U.S. and Costa Rica, especially in the attitudes of many of the people."

He saw an encampment of about 1,000 gold miners crammed under one roof in Golfito — now a jobless group living on a form of welfare after the government declared their mining area a national park and ejected them.

Golfito was a thriving port for about 50 years, serving as a major export point for bananas headed for the U.S., but widespread disease to the banana crop in that area prompted United Brands to pull out in 1984, leaving behind a 20-25% unemployment rate in this town of 10,000.

"A lot of these people were very bitter about their unemployment and economic troubles, convinced that the government in the central valley capital of San Jose didn't care much about the problems in their distant coastal city," Dr. White reports. "You can find a Citing the notion that Central Americans don't work hard, he says he witnessed the exact opposite of this.

Dr. White observed another valuable economic asset among Costa Ricans' flexibility and adjustability. When United Brands moved its Chiquita banana operation from Golfito to Panama, much of the banana tree acreage was converted to grow African palm oil trees, which produce oil used

The mayor of Whiting declared the day — June 8, 1986 — as Adam P. Lesinsky Day. The Society announced its plans to erect a gazebo in the Whiting City Park and dedicate it in honor of Lesinsky, who was music director at Hammond High School 1925-31 and at Whiting High School 1931-55. He was professor of music at Saint Joseph's 1958-66. Over 100 of his former students attended the fete.

Saint Joe Needs Saint Pat Marchers

Marchers are needed for the 1987 Saint Patrick's Day Parade through downtown Chicago.

Those interested in marching should contact the Alumni Office, Box 870, SJC, Rensselaer, Ind. 47978 (219-866-7111, exts. 177 & 123), giving your name and home and work phone numbers.

in cooking, soaps, and margarine; the oil residue is used as cattle feed.

Costa Ricans must use heavy amounts of fertilizer to coax dietary staples like corn, beans, and rice from relatively poor soil, and many acres are simply grasslands used for cattle grazing.

"Even though Spanish is their language, a third of Costa Ricans' music is American rock and roll," says Dr. White. "The people are appreciative of their democratic freedoms and they feel strange, if not fearful, when they encounter the more authoritarian governing styles of their neighbors."

White teaches a course on U.S. economic history, and says his trip should help him in the classroom here plus in his Core general education instructional duties.

"We visited a 5,000-acre coffee plantation in Rio Negro, where the owner had computerized the production record of every tree on the plantation," says Dr. White. "We saw how various plantation sections could be replanted, if necessary, to achieve greater productivity.

"We spent another evening with Panama's head of United Brands, and experiences like these taught me a lot about corporate structures and how to maximize profits, whether it be in the U.S. or Costa Rica," he adds. "This will help me in the classroom."

When he teaches in the Core Latin American program, Dr. White says he will be helped by a better understanding of the Costa Rican people at the grassroots level — their hopes and fears, ambitions and problems.

"I will encourage students to learn a second language."

— Bill White

Dr. White closes with this personal note: "Walking through airports or villages, or while visiting or shopping, I gained a much deeper sense of the problem that Spanish-speaking immigrants face when they come to the U.S.

"Without a control of your surrounding language, you feel helpless, powerless. I can now better understand some of the obstacles people in a strange land must overcome, and I will encourage my students at Saint Joe to pick up a second language."

Religion Professor Studies Costa Rica

Costa Rica is blessed with a democratic government and an active economy, but various social problems persist. With the help of the Catholic Church, those problems are being addressed as effectively as resources permit.

Father Tim McFarland, lecturer in religion at Saint Joseph's, visited Costa Rica for two weeks this summer and was especially interested in the impact of the Church on that nation.

Social disintegration is no simple problem in Costa Rica, where unemployment, alcoholism, insufficient nutrition, and "free union" marriages concern the Church.

In the Pacific Ocean port of Golfito, Father McFarland talked with a priest whose parish covers 1100 square miles and includes about 14,000 persons. The native priest said he has only about 60 to 70 weddings per year, because most people live in juntados, or a "free union" arrangement. It is common for these arrangements to last 10 to 12 years before marriage in a civil ceremony or in the Church occurs.

"There are a lot of children who don't know who their fathers are," he says.

Father McFarland noted a marked difference in the degree of religious practice from urban to rural areas. In the capital of San Jose, with a metropolitan-area population of just over one million, he walked into a church on a weekday afternoon and found about 150 people already there, as individuals constantly streamed in and out.

In contrast, he found no one in the church at Golfito (10,000 population), where the local priest told him religion was practiced much more regularly in the larger cities. He added, however, that slow-moving transportation over rugged terrain often limits church attendance.

Father McFarland also received an inside view of economic life in Central America by visiting a 5,000-acre coffee plantation at Rio Negro, the Del Monte pineapple plantation northeast of Golfito, and the United Brands Chiquita banana plant across the border at Puerto Armuelles, Panama.

"Altitude is an important consideration in growing coffee trees, because you get a better quality of coffee beans at higher altitudes but a lesser quantity, while at lower altitudes the quantity is greater but the quality isn't so good," he reports. "Coffee growers plant banana and citrus trees among the smaller coffee trees to act as windbreaks and to provide shade."

Coffee workers enjoy an added bonus they can pick and eat bananas and citrus fruit, and, if they wish, they can set up their own open-air fruit stands to sell these products

At the Del Monte pineapple plantation, Father McFarland saw 2,000 acres devoted to pineapple production in a business that hopes to expand to 3,000 acres in the near future. Such expansion plans also mean more jobs for area citizens — a welcome shot in the arm for a struggling economy.

"The most ripe pineapples are not exported because they would spoil in shipment, so they are eaten at home," Father McFarland says. "I had some of these pineapples and they were absolutely delicious."

In contrast, the best coffee, beef, and bananas are exported and what remains is kept for domestic dinner tables.

Education is mandatory up to the sixth grade, and Father McFarland says schooling is better in the more populous central valley area where it's easier to attract quality teachers. The nation has five institutions of higher learning, headed by the University of Costa Rica with a 30,000 enrollment.

"The priest in Golfito told me that he feared rural education was not preparing youngsters well for the future," comments Father McFarland. "I also noticed that public schools dominate the educational system; there simply are not that many private or parochial schools."

For the educated woman in Costa Rica, professional opportunities may exceed those in even the United States; the current vice president is a woman, reflecting the political progress of women. At the same time, many women are tied down in single-parent families.

"One ongoing governmental problem is a lack of continuity, because each new administration throws out the good and bad policies of its predecessors and prefers to start from scratch," Father McFarland explains. "There also is a grassroots feeling that there is corruption in the government, that the government makes promises but doesn't follow through, and that it knowingly diverts more resources to the central valley area, where most of the wealth and larger urban areas are located. Rural residents resent this."

Father McFarland says much of the information gained is "a microcosm of what's happening in all of Central America. This is especially true with regard to the use of the land, since the welfare of many of these nations depends on agriculture. Costa Rica, for example, is a course beans, rice, citrus fruit, beef, bananas, and coffee to form the backbone of a typical day's menu not to mention much of the nation's export industry."

"I have an increased awareness of another culture."

— Father Tim McFarland

He points out that deforestation and erosion of the soil which isn't that good in the first place should be a major concern for government officials.

"I spoke with Joseph Tosi, a staff member for the Tropical Science Center at San Jose, and he told me his organization has encouraged the government to plan for the future by carefully reforesting eroded areas," says Father McFarland. "The lack of continuity in governmental policies has hampered any consistent reforestation program, but I hope there is a firm awareness that the long-range economic welfare of this nation will depend in no small degree on how effectively they reforest and make good use of all available soil."

The ultimate beneficiaries of the visit to Costa Rica by Father McFarland and fellow SJC faculty members will be to their students.

"I have come back with an increased awareness of a different culture, seen in both its large and small elements, and this will be very helpful as I seek to help our students understand other nations we will treat in Saint Joseph's Latin American studies program," concludes Father McFarland.

Football

Continued improvement was the goal for the Pumas' 1986 season, following a 3-7-0 campaign in 1985 that marked the team's most wins since 1982.

Bill Reagan began his second year as head coach with a 27-26 win against Muskingum (New Concord, Ohio). Tony Hoop of Chicago kicked a 37-yard field goal with 71 seconds remaining, boosting the Pumas to their one-point victory in a closely-contested battle that saw the lead change hands five times during the game.

The Muskingum contest also brought quarterback Pat Leonard of Grand Rapids, Mich. the honor of being named co-winner of the offensive player-of-the-week by the Heartland Conference. Leonard completed 22 of 29 passes for 223 yards and two touchdowns.

Saint Joe then devoured the Illinois Benedictine Eagles in an away game in Lisle, Ill., 35-0. The Pumas scored 21 second-quarter points en route to a 28-0 halftime lead as the Puma running attack ripped gaping holes in the IBC defense and the SJC defense intercepted a school-record eight passes to demoralize thoroughly the hosts.

It was the first Puma shutout since a 25-0 whitewash of Saginaw Valley State in the second game of the 1982 season and the biggest margin of victory since a 37-0 romp past Olivet in the 1976 season opener.

SJC rolled up 309 net yards in 45 carries — that's 6.8 yards per try — and the Pumas' ground superiority was established right from the start.

Defensive back Joe Helmer of Highland, Ind. was named defensive player-of-the-week in the Heartland Conference following his record-breaking four pass interceptions in the game against Illinois Benedictine.

The next game brought out two scouts from the New York Jets, who were examining the pro potential of three Bemidji State players, demonstrating that the Pumas were up against quite a challenge with this eighth-ranked NAIA Division I team!

But the team tore right into the challengers from Minnesota, converting two short punts, two fumble recoveries, and one pass interception into 30 points during a 37-10 victory.

Two Saint Joe players won Heartland Conference player-of-the-week honors for their performance against Bemidji. Cornerback Joe Helmer of Highland, Ind. was cited as defensive player-of-the-week for his three pass thefts plus four tackles that helped the Pumas shut down the Beaver's high-powered offense. Flanker Dennis O'Hara of Indianapolis was cited as offensive player-of-the-week for his eight pass receptions which covered 129 yards and had little reason to doubt the forecasting skills of odds-makers who had installed Ashland as a 17-point favorite, but the Pumas changed that scenario by tallying the game's first touchdown, then refusing to wilt after Ashland grabbed a 17-7 advantage after three quarters.

Momentum had apparently swung totally toward Ashland as the game entered the final quarter, but Saint Joe promptly regained the initiative with a 14-play, 78-yard touchdown march.

In its game against Franklin in Indianapolis' Hoosier Dome, Saint Joe rode an explosive running attack sparked by Rory Johnson (Toledo, Ohio) to a seemingly commanding 35-14 lead mid-way through rain-soaked 13-10 Heartland Conference victory.

Frustration was the prevailing feeling among Saint Joseph's football players and coaches after the Pumas missed several key opportunities in the second half of the next game and Indianapolis escaped with a 23-17 Heartland Conference victory.

Quarters three and four were certainly no pleasure for coach Bill Reagan and his staff to watch, as Saint Joe intercepted two passes, recovered one fumble, and blocked an Indianapolis field goal, but still could not overcome the 21-17 edge the Greyhounds grabbed less than two minutes into the second half.

Saint Joseph's opportunistic included two touchdowns.

The game against Bemidji State left Saint Joe as the only remaining unbeaten team in the Heartland Conference.

Saint Joe began its Heartland Collegiate Conference schedule with an anxiety-causing 15-14 win over Evansville that featured plenty of fourth-quarter action.

Homecoming Day saw the Pumas' first loss as challenger Butler controlled the line of scrimmage from start to finish before 2,200 fans at Brookside Park, going on to earn a 32-22 victory.

The following Saturday, Saint Joe chased heavily-favored Ashland from start to finish before the Eagles' defense stopped a late Puma scoring threat as the hosts escaped with a 17-14 victory.

Most of the 2,500 fans who visited sun-splashed Community Stadium for this contest the third quarter, but then Franklin dominated the rest of the contest with a persistent, accurate aerial attack that cut the gap to 35-28 and threatened to overtake the Pumas in the game's final minute. With the game now on the line, however, the injury-riddled Puma defense saved this hard-fought victory.

Fullback Rory Johnson was named co-winner of the Heartland Conference offensive player-of-the-week honor for his performance against Franklin. Johnson ran 86 yards for a touchdown and netted 204 yards in 21 carries against the Grizzlies.

Saint Joseph's offense gave a Parents Day crowd of 1,500 plenty to cheer about during the first four minutes, then very little reason for jubilation the rest of the way as Valparaiso came from behind to register a offense triggered the Pumas' largest point explosion in 29 years before 1,600 wind-chilled fans as the hosts overwhelmed St. Francis by 48-19 in the season finale for both teams.

SJC's point production unit turned three fumble recoveries into 17 first-half points as the Pumas grabbed a 24-7 halftime lead, then the hosts upped their lead to 38-7 late in the third quarter before turning the rest of the contest over to reserve performers.

This was the most points Saint Joe had tallied since Nov. 16, 1957, when one of coach Bob Jauron's powerhouse squads blasted Eastern Michigan, 48-13.

Both Saint Joe and St. Francis finished their 1986 campaigns with 6-4 records. For Saint Joe it marks an impressive turnaround from last year's 3-7 record as well as the first winning season at Collegeville since the 6-3 slate in 1981. Coach Reagan commented, "I think a 6-4 record is important because it signals a turnaround for us and hopefully will give us a solid foundation to build upon as we look to the future."

Golf

Saint Joe's golf squad opened its 1986 season in Indianapolis with a fourth-place finish among 14 teams in the Butler Invitational.

The golf team improved its season record to 37-9 with a third-place finish among 17 entrants in the Puma Invitational at Curtis Creek Country Club.

The team then placed fourth among nine entrants in the Eastern Illinois University Invitational.

The golfers boosted their record to 51-13 with a second-place finish in the 11-team IUPU-Fort Wayne Invitational.

The team finished seventh among 18 entries at the Franklin College Invitational, leaving the Pumas with a 62-19 season record.

Another upward swing was made in the team's record to 74-22 with a fourth-place finish in the 16-team Indiana Invitational at Evansville.

The Pumas then earned a fourth-place finish among 15 teams in the Indiana Inter-collegiate Tournament, played at the Golf Club of Indiana.

SJC's team improved its season record to 91-27 with a third-place finish in the annual Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament.

Saint Joe ended its golf season with a third-place finish in the Valparaiso Invitational, ending up with a 95-29 season record.

Volleyball

Saint Joseph's volleyball Pumas overcame their own serving errors as well as Parkland Junior College as Collegeville hosted the season-opener with a 15-13, 9-15, 15-8, 14-16, 15-13 victory over the visitors from Champaign, Ill.

Saint Joe dropped matches to Wright State, Wayne State, and Grand Valley State at the IUPU-Fort Wayne Invitational, but coach Linda Taulman said "considering that all three of these teams will probably be ranked among the top 15 Division II teams nationally, we gained good experience against some very high-quality competition."

The Pumas then dominated Valparaiso in two home games to claim a 16-4, 13-15, 15-12,

15-11 victory over the Crusaders.

Serving errors plagued the team again as the Pumas dropped an 8-15, 12-15, 13-15 contest to Franklin, leaving Saint Joe with a 2-4 season record.

Saint Joe then rolled past Ancilla College in a 15-1, 15-8, 15-5 contest.

SJC won the first game, then ran out of steam in the final three games as the home team lost to Marian 11-15, 15-10, 15-11, 15-11.

SJC's volleyball team moved ahead by winning two of three matches in the DePauw Quadrangular. SJC defeated Blackburn (III.) 15-10, 15-7 and DePauw 11-15, 15-0, 15-8 before dropping a 9-15, 13-5 contest to Oakland City.

The volleyball team defeated Tri-State (15-11, 15-4) and lost to host St. Mary's (15-13, 13-15, 0-15) in a triangular that left the Pumas with a 6-7 season record.

Saint Joseph's registered a come-from-behind win in the last of four games as the volleyball Pumas evened their season record at 7-7 with a 15-13, 15-7, 11-15, 15-13 victory over Purdue-Calumet.

The next weekend was one for smiling, as the Pumas gathered a pair of impressive victories Friday and Saturday during the Kentucky Wesleyan Triangular.

Saint Joe whipped Southern Indiana by 6-15, 15-9, 15-12, 15-13 Friday night, then came back Saturday to trim the host Panthers by 15-13, 15-6, 10-15, 15-11.

The Pumas started well with 15-13 and 15-5 wins in the first two games against Valparaiso, then went steadily downhill in losing 12-15, 8-15, and 0-15 contests, bringing their season record to 9-8.

SJC lost on the road to IUPU-Fort Wayne and Ashland, heading into a home game against Ancilla College, where a victory evened up the Pumas' season record at 10-10.

Blocking, passing, and serve reception problems proved fatal to SJC as the Pumas dropped a 15-6, 13-15, 9-15, 8-15 contest to IUPU-Indianapolis.

IUPU-Fort Wayne then displayed a superior offense and overpowered Saint Joseph's to claim a 15-7, 15-6, 15-12 victory.

Saint Joe improved its season record to 11-12 with a 15-9, 15-5 victory over Marion College.

Saint Joseph's volleyball team defeated Bellarmine and lost to Northern Kentucky in a pair of Great Lakes Valley Conference matches that left the Pumas with a 12-13 season record.

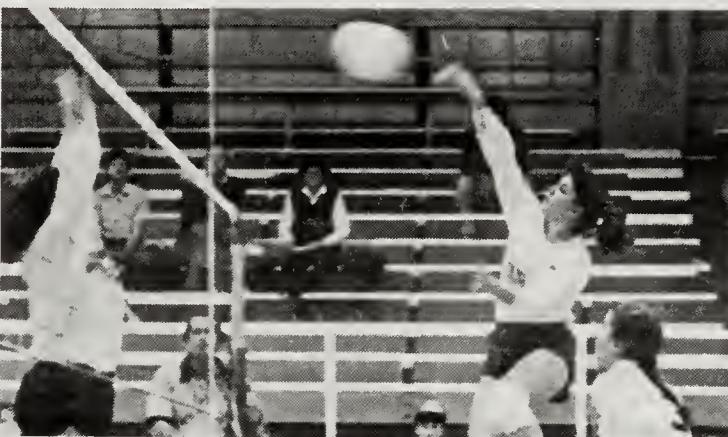

Saint Joseph's defeated Taylor and lost to Indianapolis in a volleyball triangular. Saint Joe rebounded from a 14-11 deficit in the first game against Taylor, and SJC coach Linda Taulman remarked, "we just kept pushing; it's encouraging to see that we didn't give up."

Lewis led all the way as the Flyers captured a 15-2, 15-5, 15-5 volleyball match from visiting Saint Joseph's.

Saint Joe dropped weekend matches at Mt. St. Joseph's of Cincinnati and Indianapolis, bringing the Pumas' season record to 13-17.

Effective passing was SJC's chief asset as the Pumas hosted a victory over Manchester College.

Saint Joe's volleyball team overcame a first-game loss with three straight wins as the Pumas captured victory over Purdue-Calumet, bringing the Pumas a 15-17 season record.

Men's and Women's Cross Country

SJC's men's cross country team opened its 1986 season at home with an impressive 21-34 victory over Valparaiso. Dan Van Houten of DeMotte, Ind. led the field over the five-mile SJC campus course with a time of 28:28.

Puma women started their cross country season on a winning note in Fort Wayne, Ind. by placing first among four teams in the IUPU-Fort Wayne Hokem Karem, while the Puma men placed fourth among eight schools in their competition.

Saint Joe women improved their season record to 8-0 by outrunning five opponents in the Butler Invitational. Karen Austin of Abingdon, Ill. led the field with a time of 18:20. Saint Joe men finished fourth in a field of seven teams and now owned an 8-6 season record.

Saint Joe women then swept past six foes to take first place while the men placed fifth among 12 entrants in the Grace College cross country invitational. Saint Joe's Karen Austin dominated the meet by completing the 3.1-mile course in 18:02, a new course and new SJC school record.

Saint Joe's men finished 12th among 17 entrants in the Taylor Invitational, leaving the Pumas with a 20-21 season record.

Saint Joe women outdistanced a nine-team field in the Manchester College Invitational to improve their season record to a glittering 22-0, while Puma men showed improvement and finished sixth among 12 entries.

Saint Joe's men's cross country team then went on to finish second in a four-team field in the Lewis Invitational.

Saint Joseph's women ran impressively at Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Ind. and captured second place in the annual Little State meet. Saint Joseph's Karen Austin finished fourth in the GLVC meet.

Karen Austin added another jewel to her list of accomplishments by winning the individual championship of the Great Lakes Regional, hosted by Central Missouri State University. Austin finished first in 18:43, thus setting a new course record by 33 seconds; she also finished 30 seconds ahead of the second-place runner. She is the first individual regional NCAA Division II champion in SJC history and on Nov. 22 she became the Pumas' fourth individual runner to compete in the NCAA national finals, held this year at the University of California-Riverside.

As a team, the Puma women finished ninth in a field of 16 teams.

Women's Tennis

Saint Joseph's women's tennis team launched its 1986 season on a winning note as the Pumas swept five of six singles matches and all three doubles contests en route to an 8-1 victory over IUPU-Fort Wayne.

Five of nine matches were extended to three sets in Lockport, Ill., as SJC's women's tennis team overcame Lewis University by 8-1.

The team then registered an 8-1 victory over IUPU-Fort Wayne, winning five singles matches and all three doubles contests.

Butler University won two doubles contests after splitting the six singles events with Saint Joseph's as the Bulldogs claimed a 5-3 victory over the Puma women's team.

Four victories in six singles matches got SJC off on the right foot as the Pumas improved their season record to 4-1 with a 6-3 victory over host DePaul University.

Winning tough matches on the road is the mark of a solid tennis team, and Saint Joe women earned that distinction as the Pumas overcame a tough St. Mary's squad by 5-4.

Saint Joe's women's tennis team improved its season record to 7-1 as the Pumas whipped Elmhurst (Ill.) College by 7-2 in the morning and Valparaiso by 6-1 in the afternoon. The Pumas rolled to five singles victories, including wins in a pair of three-set contests.

Saint Joseph's women's tennis team won four of six singles matches as the Pumas won a hard-fought 5-2 victory over the University of Indianapolis.

Saint Joe's women reached a peak of dedication and team effort as the Pumas overcame demanding challenges from Bellarmine and Indianapolis to capture the 1986 Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament championship. Final team scores were: SJC 21, Bellarmine 17, Indianapolis 14, Southern Indiana 6, Kentucky Wesleyan 5, Lewis 4, Northern Kentucky 4, and IUPU-Fort Wayne 1.

SJC's Shelle Fuquay of Evansville, Ind. (number five singles) and Debbie Freche of Cedar Lake, Ind. (number six singles) were tournament champions, along with the Pumas' number three doubles combination of Renee Resley (Carmel, Ind.) and Kathy Bruin (Lima, Ohio).

Soccer

The soccer season began as Grace College overcame a stiff Saint Joe defense while the Pumas struggled on offense as the visitors registered a 3-0 soccer victory.

The team was left with a 0-4 season following weekend losses to St. Francis (Ill.) and Northern Kentucky, but coach Mike Minielli said signs of improvement were beginning to show. He said the team displayed a solid attitude and spirit, "and we're fighting right down to the wire instead of giving up when we fall behind."

Saint Joseph's ended its frustrating string of four losses with a 2-1 victory over Concordia.

Bellarmine then turned three defensive mistakes into three first-half goals as the Knights went on to record a 3-0 soccer victory over the Pumas.

IUPU-Fort Wayne overcame a tough Saint Joe defense with a pair of goals early in the second half and went on to capture a 2-1 soccer victory.

Lewis University used

superior firepower to jump out to an early lead and defeat SJC by 5-1. Lewis gained a 2-0 lead by halftime, then the Flyers built their edge to 5-0 before the Pumas' Dave Schrand (Indianapolis) notched his first college goal 34 minutes into the second half.

"Our players must have been trying to test my cardiovascular system," quipped soccer coach Mike Minelli after his Pumas broke a scoreless tie with less than three minutes remaining to capture a 1-0 victory over Fairhaven Baptist.

The Pumas then defeated Concordia by 3-2 as the Pumas improved their season record to 3-7 with their second straight victory.

Manchester College scored a goal with just one second remaining in overtime to claim a hard-fought 1-0 soccer victory over visiting Saint Joseph's. Manchester scored on a 15-yard shot during a loose-ball scramble just before time ran out.

Loyola jumped on a series of defensive lapses by Saint Joe while recording a 7-0 victory over the Pumas. Loyola notched six first-half goals and recorded a 35-8 advantage in shots on goal.

Saint Joe's soccer team exploded for four second-half goals as the Pumas improved their season record to 4-9 with a 5-0 whitewash of visiting Fort Wayne Bible.

St. Francis College broke a 1-1 halftime deadlock with three consecutive goals in the second half as the hosts went on to register a 4-2 soccer victory over visiting Saint Joseph's.

Valparaiso scored 22 minutes into the first half and again 13 minutes later, then went on to capture a 3-0 soccer victory over Saint Joseph's.

Saint Joseph's completed a "lost weekend" with a 7-0 loss to Kentucky Wesleyan that leaves the Pumas with a 4-13 season record. In the first game of this southern trip, SJC also dropped a 7-0 decision at Evansville against Southern Indiana.

Lewis eliminated Saint Joe from the Great Lakes Valley Conference with a 6-0 victory, ending the Pumas' season with a 4-14 record.
